

Some ideas for finding an authentic text with LITE tendencies!

FLLITE Facebook

Join the community and pick up tips as they are posted.

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/flitegroup/>

15 Most Popular Fan fiction sites—megasites that offer a variety of fictional experiences. I particularly love Deviant Art!

<https://ebookfriendly.com/fan-fiction-websites/>

Charlie Archive

An archive of realia and ephemera (texts, tweets, videos) that documents the 2015 terrorists attacks in Paris from multiple perspectives. The site is named after the French satirical magazing Charlie Héβδο. A great place for exploring the complicated issues of free speech and terrorism and religious conflicts.

<http://cahl.io/>

Digital Pedagogy in the Humanities (MLA)

A curated collection of papers that address key topics in digital humanities pedagogy.

<https://digitalpedagogy.mla.hcommons.org/>

Stories/PodCasts (StoryCorps from NPR)

An archive of podcasts based on the popular StoryCorps project (in English and in Spanish)

<https://storycorps.org/>

Internet Memes (Know Your Meme)

Website dedicated to documenting all sorts of viral media (videos, memes, etc.)

<http://knowyourmeme.com/>

Linguistic landscape (Flickr)

Language found on public and commercial signs (street signs, graffiti, bumper stickers)

<https://www.flickr.com>

Television Commercials (YouTube)

Just do a key word search (“French commercials”) and you will instantly have hundreds of high quality videos that capture the essence of FLLITE

<https://www.youtube.com>

Annotation sites (Genius)

Digital media annotated by millions of users in different languages. A fantastic resource for finding texts and inspiration for textual analysis

<https://genius.com/>